Encampment Brings Renewal to Purposes and Ideals of Pioneers

The National Encampment held in October at Mesa, Arizona, was an exciting occasion. It was truly a time of refreshing and an opportunity to renew friendships with companions who share the bonds of fellowship in this great organization. We must certainly extend a warm expression of appreciation to those in Arizona who gave us such a warm welcome and had made the requisite arrangements to assure such a pleasant experience.

This encampment was naturally more significant to me personally in being honored by you great members to assume now the leadership of our organization. The impact of this charge of leadership does not go by unnoticed, and I acknowledge this charge and express my committment to all of you to devote my efforts and time in order to fulfill this responsibility.

In viewing the various activities, programs and events of the Sons of Utah Pioneers, it quickly becomes evident that there are so many individuals who are involved and committed to the successful accomplishment of the goals and ideals of the Society. This tremendous expression of individual "volunteerism" is always apparent, and I would like to extend my thoughts of gratitude for this selfless committment by each member.

The significant leadership given by the elected and appointed officers of the chapters, the National Society, the generous time and effort provided by office and headquarters staff, the continual perserverance of the magazine staff, and, above all, the dedication of the members who support and strengthen the activities of the Society are a continual source of inspiration to me. May I extend tribute to all for this personal committment to SUP.

This coming year will mark the 50th year anniversary of SUP, and it will be our primary goal to commemorate this significant milestone. It will be a time of rejoicing and a time to make known our achieve

Glen A. Lloyd ments. It should also be a time to reflect upon our heritage and the purposes and ideals of those who took the initiative to found this organization.

It will be our challenge to properly recognize them and through a variety of activities and events, to honor them through continued committment and accomplishment. May I extend my committment to this cause and ask of each member to join with us this year in this commemoration.

SUP members who did not receive a souvenir cap from the 1982 Encampment in Mesa, Arizona still have a chance to get one, according to Spencer D. Madsen, chairman.

The sporty green and white caps were a popular souvenir of the national meeting, held in October. While supplies last, they can be requested from Madsen at 59 South Hobson, Mesa, Arizona, AZ 85204, or Glenn Greenwood, president-elect, at national headquarters.

The caps were distributed to members and their partners who registered for the Encampment, as part of their registration fee.

Pioneer Trail Markers Needed

by Ralph J. Carlson, President Pioneer Trails Relay Chapter

Following the old pioneer trails can bring back a part of the past. To travel by foot, car, or horseback and experience the trail, its' trees, rocks, streams and hills help us to appreciate the past.

But will we be able to find the important camp sites, turn-offs, springs, etc.? At the present time many of the monuments and plaques have been uprooted and destroyed by vandals. Only some of the "old-timers" know the places and their history.

Recently a SUP Committee was formed to do something about placing appropriate markers on the pioneer trail. Named Chairman was Ken Wiseman with committee members M. Elmer Christensen, Marshall K. Brinton, Ralph J. Carlson, Glen Hogan, and Randall Dixon.

Its' purpose is to identify those sites that need re-marking. This past summer a trip over the trail was completed, starting at the ''This is the Place'' monument and ending at ''Mormon Flats.'' No markers are needed at: This is the Place monument, Donner's Hill, and Last Campsite.

New markers will be needed at Camp Grant, Birch (Brown) Springs, Big Mountain (South Davis SUP Chapter to fund) and Mormon Flats (includes rock fortress).

SUP Chapters who would like to take on funding of the three unmarked sites should call Ken Wiseman at 801-292-1878. The cost is about $400 each.

It is important that the pioneer trail locations be preserved for future generations so they may know the trail, it's stories, legends, and historic spots. During July 1983 dedication ceremonies will be conducted along the trail to honor those pioneers and SUP Chapters who

Marker Honors Canyon Industries

A handsome new marble monument was erected at SUP headquarters in Salt Lake City Dec. 14 by the Oquirrh Mountain Chapter to pay honor to Pioneers who established industries in the Parleys Canyon area — industries necessary to the welfare of those who settled the Valley beginning in 1847.

The monument was placed in the lawn north of the building's entrance.

Designed by Walter Ewell, president of Oquirrh Mountain Chapter, SUP, the art work and engraving was done by Robert Light of Wilbert Salt Lake Vault and Monument Co.

Robert and Mary Ann Farnsworth started the project. Walter and Ida Ewell then researched the history of Parleys Canyon, with ideas from Harold Dangerfield. Many others have helped and contributed money to complete this project.

This is not only the trail of the Mormon pioneers but the handcart emigrants, California gold seekers, overland stage, and the pony express. Your chapter name will be identified on the plaque.

The man who did most to make the 1982 Encampment in Mesa, Arizona, a success — Spencer D. Madsen — was inadvertently cut out of the encampment photo display which appeared in the last issue of the Pioneer (even though his name appeared in the cutline).

Reprinted above is the missing part of the photograph, with our apologies, and with our heartfelt thanks for the outstanding work he did for the national society's superb meeting in October.

Chronicle of Pioneer Development in West Weber: A Mormon Community

by Dean J. Hunter City Creek Chapter

One of the many common denominators of the pioneer experience was that of town or community building. The majority of our pioneer ancestors took part in the development of communities where there had previously been no settlement. West Weber, Weber County, Utah is an example of hundreds of communities that were organized during the pioneer years.

West Weber is located west of the city of Ogden in Weber County, Utah. It is located on a bend of the Weber River, In fact, West Weber is actually bounded on three sides — the east, north and west — by the river. The center of the area is about seven miles northwest of the city of Ogden, four miles south of Plain City, and six miles northeast of Hooper. West Weber is also about forty miles northwest of Salt Lake City.

Ecclesiastically, the early LDS Church organization in this area covered the communities of Wilson and Taylor also. Wilson is located west of the Weber River about four miles southeast of West Weber and two and one-half miles west of Ogden. Taylor is located south of West Weber by about one and onehalf miles and is seven miles west of Ogden. When the West Weber Ward was organized in 1877 it contained the area of both Wilson and Taylor. Wilson was the first area to break off and establish its own LDS ward, which was in 1882. It was not until 1909 that Taylor was organized into a separate LDS ward.

The first people who came into the West Weber area did not settle there permanently, but built cabins to be used while herding stock. The area of West Weber was used from about 1850 on by people living in Ogden as a grazing area for stock. William Middleton and Oliver Bybee built a cabin north of the center of West Weber in 1851 but they did not stay in it for the whole year. The first real settlement came after 1859 when John Douglas, John Isaac Hart and Hans D.

Petterson purchased land from Captain James Brown and began to settle their families there. Captain James Brown had purchased a large tract of land in the Weber County area in November of 1847 from Miles Goodyear. Captain Brown purchased this land on behalf of the Mormon Church with Mormon Battalion funds, but part of the purchase was made with his own money, and so he retained title to about three hundred acres. It was this land that he sold to the first settlers of West Weber. In 1859 the first child was born in West Weber on the 20th of December. He was James R. McFarland, son of Archibald and Isabel McFarland.

The main occupation of those who settled in West Weber was agriculture and stock raising and so in 1861 an irrigation company was organized (named the South Western Irrigation Company) with the purpose being to build a canal to carry water from the Weber River. A total of thirteen people signed the petition that was presented to the County Court at the formation of this company. They were John I. Hart, William McFarland, Ambrose Greenwell, Hans Petterson, John Douglas, William Butler, James Ririe, James McFarland, William McFarland, Jr., Archibald McFarland, Robert Hellewell, John Bitten and Alice Brown.

Agriculture continued to be the main occupation of those who settled in West Weber. A study of the 1880 Federal Census shows that 148 of the men or 73 percent of the population listed their occupation as either farmer or working on farm. Another 32 men or 16 percent were listed as laborers and only 11 percent or 22 men were listed with non-agricultural occupations.

The first school house in West Weber was started around the fall of 1861 and was built of logs and was completed in the spring of 1862 at the cost of $18.00. The log school was moved a number of times as the settlement expanded. In 1872 an adobe structure was built where the present West Weber LDS wardhouse is located.

As the town of West Weber was an LDS community (in fact as late as 1900 there was only one non-Mormon family in West Weber), the Church organization played an important part in the lives of the people. William Kay was the first person called to serve as Presiding Elder of West Weber District and he served from 1860 to 1864 when he moved to Ogden. Richard Douglas, the second Presiding Elder, also went to Ogden in 1867 and he was replaced by Archibald McFarland. Archibald McFarland served for five years from 1867 to 1872 at which time he resigned and was replaced by John Isaac Hart. On the 28th of May 1877 when the West Weber District was made a ward, John Isaac Hart was called to serve as bishop. Bishop Hart served for eleven years as bishop of the West Weber Ward being released in

The 1880 Census reveals that 71 percent of the adults in West Weber were born outside of North America. West Weber was a community of Mormon emigrants. The majority of 57 percent of the adults were born in England and Scotland and an additional 10 percent were from the Scandinavian countries of Denmark, Sweden, and Norway.

The settlers of West Weber were faced with the hardship that came from trying to wrestle a life out of the desert. A couple of 19th century reports show how successful they were at obtaining this goal. An 1878 Ogden City Directory stated that West Weber, "like many other places, has been wrested from the occupancy of the sagebrush and greasewood, which have given place to smiling fields and pleasant orchards whose annual productions now reward the people for the years of industry and hard labor they have spent upon the land to rescue it from its former sterility. It produces some of the finest apples, pears, and strawberries raised in the county." In a July 1880 Deseret News a correspondent wrote: "From the com-mencement of this settlement the brethren and sisters have toiled very hard under adverse circumstances . . . Notwithstanding, they have labored and truly made the desert blossom. The people have grown and prospered in flocks and herds, and houses and barns, and above all, sons and daughters, so that they number 901 souls.'

SUP Lecture Series Probes Legacy of Brigham Young

Jeffery O. Johnson

The second of nine monthly lectures titled "The Legacy of Brigham Young'' was held on Wednesday, Oct. 13, at the national headquarters building of the SUP.

Jeffery O. Johnson of the Historical Department of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and past-president of the City Creek chapter of the SUP presented a lecture entitled "Living — and Living with — the Principle: the Brigham Young Households."

Johnson said that because Brigham Young had instructed the Historian's Office that "he did not wish but little history of his family given" there is a vacuum at the center of our knowledge about the Young household. The majority of the information that is available that deals with life within the Young family comes from the writings of his wives and children.

Although Brigham Young accepted the principle of polygamy in Nauvoo, it was not until the family arrived in Utah that he was faced with the responsibility of establishing a home under polygamy. In 1853, building commenced on the Beehive House, and the Companion House, the Lion House was begun a year later in 1854.

The Lion House became the public polygamous dwelling in Utah and it housed as many as twenty wives and numerous children at the same time.

Brigham Young's daughter, Susa Young Gates, mentioned that the main floor consisted of nine bedroom/sitting rooms and the parlor or prayer-room. The main bedrooms were occupied by the wives with children, while the upstairs rooms belonged to childless wives. The basement or lower floor contained a long dining room which would accommodate from fifty to seventy people at a meal.

On the whole, the records show that life in the Young household was pleasant and peaceful and that concern was shown to members of the household as one group and not as individual families living together. The concern expressed and help offered by many different wives during the sickness and death of little Teddy Young, son of Clara Decker Young, is an example of the household's togetherness. Mary Ann Angell Young, the second wife, considered herself as the matriarch of a very large family.

Johnson mentioned that many of the wives had the opportunity to develop their personal talents. Zina Huntington Young and Eliza R. Snow are two examples. Eliza R. Snow, who was childless, led the Relief Society and served as de facto matron of the Endowment House and became the most repected woman in the Territory. Zina Huntington Young studied nursing under Dr. Willard Richards and gained the title "Aunt Zina, the Comforter" for her nursing efforts. Zina also became involved in the efforts to produce silk in the Territory and was elected president of the silk association when it was organized in 1876.

"We must admit that we lack any information about the conjugal arrangement of the household, whether jealousy was a real part of the emotional climate of the home, and to what extent the status of the wives depended on their current standing with Brigham Young, '' Johnson said.

Bro. Johnson pointed out that the Young household met many of the social needs and that the wives were able to find companionship and support from each other. "In its harmony and smooth working, it set an example to the rest of the territory, a factor that was no doubt a value to Brigham Young; and like the Church itself, it had an inclusive definition of who "belonged." Those who belonged once apparently belonged forever unless they chose to remove themselves from its circle; and even those who might have had only peripheral claims on it - orphans, adoptees, transitory help - saw those claims honored.'

At the end of the lecture, Bro. Johnson answered several questions from the audience. In answer to the question, "How many wives did Brigham Young have?" Bro. Johnson said that to answer that question one must define "wife." Brigham Young was sealed during his lifetime to fifty-five women, who were also alive at the time of the sealing, but Brigham himself did not consider all fifty-five of them as wives.

"The Lion Roared" on November 10 in the Sons of Utah Pioneer's building as Dr. Ronald Esplin gave a very enlightening presentation titled "Beyond the Stereotypes: The Colorful Brigham Young." He explained the leadership style that made him an effective leader for his time and place.

Brigham was devoted to Joseph Smith. Once he was committed to Joseph, his loyalty was undying.

Brought up on the frontier, he was influenced by this upbringing, and his language was full of hyperbole and exaggeration. Because he was completely devoted to his religion, he wanted to know the will of God and to do it.

Brigham's early life was filled with pain and suffering. He knew pain when shortly after joining the Mormon Church he saw his wife suffer and finally die. He experienced further suffering when he was run out of Kirtland because of his devotion to Joseph Smith.

He suffered psychologically when he had to leave his second wife and young family to serve on a mission to England. He knew that the Church could not provide for his family, but he was devoted to his cause and had to go.

When he sent his people off to colonize new areas or to the mission fields, he knew that they would suffer hardships. He had been in that circumstance many times himself.

Esplin explained that Brigham's way of speaking was appropriate for his people. He used dramatic colorful language in order to get his point across. His speeches in the Tabernacle appeared to be spontaneous but he had thought them out carefully for weeks before. He also carefully edited his own speeches before they were published.

In his sermons he could work himself into a calculated fever pitch. As Wilford Woodruff once said, "The Lion Roared Tonight."

He was not the autocrat of legend. He tried to move his people by persuasion, but if they would not do that he would use other means. He had the ability to get to the point, and tried not to offend. But he talked to his people bluntly.

He said once from the pulpit, "I brought a message for the Saints, but I've looked over this audience and found nothing but Mormons. My message will have to wait." He chastized even the apostles publicly. He thought that chastizement was part of the refiner's fire. If a person were too great to be admonished, they were not fit for power.

Very seldom did he praise. He told them that they would receive enough praise from their God, and didn't need any from Brigham Young. He usually knew how far he could go with this type of harsh language,

Brigham Young had a great love for his fellow human beings. He would stand by those in error for much longer than many of the Church leaders. He desired Lyman Wight to come back and join with the apostles. Finally George A. Smith in Iowa cut him off. Brigham sustained that action.

He had frequent clashes with Orson Pratt, but when the apostles wanted to disfellowship Orson, Brigham

Brigham Young also had great vision. When Buchanan sent troops to Utah, Brigham told Jesse Little

Dr. Esplin conveyed Brigham Young as a man who was decisive, blunt, introspective, and loving. He was a man who had the leadership skills which his people needed.

She has taught in the Boston schools and has been a research historian in the Church Historical Department. She is the co-author of "Women's Voices: An Untold History of the Latter-day Saints."

Mrs. Derr said that most writers have looked at Brigham Young's attitude toward women primarily through the polygamous relationships. These writers have thought that Brigham is considered to be an oppressor of women.

They have not looked at his support for the Relief Society, and his encouragement of women to participate in many other fields. Actually, somewhere between these two opposing views is the real Brigham Young.

Brigham spoke of individual women as daughters of God, free agents, beings with the same eternal possibilities of men. Yet, within the family, he insisted that wives submit themselves to their husbands and he chided mothers who pursued personal interests at the expense of their children. As the Mormon community increased in complexity, Young gave sisters the resources and encouragement to pursue roles outside their homes.

Early in his presidency, Young emphasized that woman's role was to be a mother and a wife in Zion. She was completely secondary to her husband. Women submitted to the well-ordered kingdom but the kingdom in turn gave them new freedom, particularly during the last decade of Brigham Young's administration.

With the coming of the telegraph and railroad, women were needed in offices, especially telegraph offices. In 1867, Young announced, "We have sisters now engaged in several of our telegraph offices, and we wish them to learn not only to act as operators but to keep the books of our offices."

Young also encouraged every bishop to organize Relief Societies in their wards, and he appointed Eliza R. Snow to be the organization's general president and gave it his support.

The Relief Societies gave women an outlet for their own creativeness. They were able to raise money through their home industries which even enabled them to build their own meeting halls. They became involved in the silk industry and a grain storage program. Their grain was later sent to earthquake victims in San Francisco and China.

Jill Derr emphasized that Young felt that the hard laborious work belonged to men, but he encouraged women in many fields. He instructed the Relief Society to furnish Romania Bunnell Pratt with money, so she could complete her course at the Women's Medical College in New York. He also encouraged the movement of women into journalism, sanctioning the beginnings of the Woman's Exponent, a semimonthly publication. He also encouraged them to participate in the sufferage movement.

The status of Mormon women decidedly improved during the administration of President Brigham Young. His reorganization of the Relief Society launched women into an era of public activity that involved them in business and gave them new economic status in a community that was itself concerned with economic identity. His motive, however, in giving opportunity to women was not to move them toward equality with or independence from men. Derr said however, that Young cannot be classified as an oppressor of women.

In proportion to Young's increased use of women as vital resources, the kingdom grew and the women grew.

Two New Panels Added to Memorial Plaques; 5,000 Names Included; New 1983 Goals Set

Two New Plaques

On the opposite page, two new plaques are reproduced. They have been added to the Memorial Gallery's previous display of eight panels, copies of which were printed last year in The Pioneer.

At the left is the new ninth panel containing names of Pioneers who arrived before 1869. At the right is the first panel of names of immigrants, settlers and newborn natives after that date.

by David M. Mayfield

Nine complete plaques, honoring nearly 5,000 pioneer men and women who came to, or were born in, Utah before May 1869, are on display in a memorial gallery at the new national headquarters of the Sons of Utah Pioneers in Salt Lake City. Each plaque, made of anodized aluminum with gold-colored lettering permanently inscribed by a chemical-photographic process, contains 550 names.

The first plaque of a new series is also on display. It lists persons arriving in Utah after 1869 who exemplified the pioneer spirit. Many of these people will be the fathers and mothers of current SUP members who emigrated to Utah or in other ways contributed to its development.

A third series of plaques will be placed in the gallery next Spring in conjunction with the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Sons of Utah Pioneers organization. These plaques will list the names of persons who have donated or helped raise a thousand dollars for the construction of the new national headquarters building.

New Programs Launched

Additional programs are underway to obtain thousands of additional names for the memorialization plaques. The SUP national headquarters staff is checking the application forms of new members from the past five years to determine if that person's pioneer ancestor is included on a memorialization plaque. If not, the member will receive a written invitation to do so.

The national headquarters has also obtained from the Visitors Center of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in San Diego a list of living descendants of members of the Mormon Battalion. Special invitations are being sent to these descendants requesting their participation in the memorialization program.

Descendants of the handcart pioneers are also being encouraged to memorialize their valiant ancestors. A large replica of the handcart pioneers statue will be on display at the new national headquarters building as encouragement to these descendants.

For Family Organizations

The national headquarters is also preparing a "memorialization kit" for distribution to family organizations. The kit will include: (1) a "plaque memorialization card" for listing the name and pertinent dates of the pioneer to be listed; (2) a return envelope; (3) a general outline of the memorialization program; and (4) a listing of all names presently recorded on the existing plaques. If your organization would like to obtain a copy of this kit, contact Jack Nielsen or Lowell Castleton at the SUP headquarters, 3301 East, 2920 South, Salt Lake City, Utah 84109.

Ultimately, the National Society, Sons of Utah Pioneers, hopes to list tens of thousands of pioneers and persons exemplifying the pioneer spirit. Of equal importance, however, the national headquarters Library hopes to obtain a life sketch or history of each person who has been memorialized. These life sketches will make the Library an important resource for studying the works and faith of our forefathers and of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

All SUP members are urged to actively participate in and promote the submission of additional names for the memorialization program. They should also prepare or obtain life sketches of the persons listed and deposit copies of this material in the Sons of Utah Pioneers Library.

Box Elder Honors Eberhart Zundel

A distinguished citizen award was presented recently by ten officers of the Box Elder Chapter to Eberhart Zundel in a brief program at his home Brigham City.

Zundel is the retired clerktreasurer of the Box Elder Board of Education. Presentation of the framed certificate was by Sam Gordon, past chapter president, now a vice president in the national SUP.

A daughter, Mrs. Eugene (Marjorie) Jorgenson of Tremonton recalled early family memories in Plymouth, Box Elder County. Additional tributes were spoken by J. C. Haws, chapter president, under whom Zundel served when Haws became Superintendent of Schools.

Christmas dinner for the chapter was Dec. 8th, with Mr. Zundel as a special guest. Life Member certificates were presented to Floyd Carter, Herman Hadfield, James H. Norman and Ralph Tolman, bringing the total to 21 new Life Members in the past year. Sixtyeight members have their 1983 memberships renewed to date.

Box Elder High School's Madrigal Singers provided musical entertainment for the 140 members and guests present.

First Meeting of New Chapter at Snowflake, Ariz.

The initial meeting of the new Snowflake Chapter of Sons of Utah Pioneers was held in November at the historic home of Jessie N. Smith.

An address by Paul J. Updike, national SUP vice president at large told of the life of Ashael ''Crook-Neck'' Smith, grandfather of the Prophet Joseph Smith. Refreshments were furnished by Pat Malou and served by the partners of the charter members.

Henry Campbell Burns was elected President, with Nephi W. Bushman, a great-grandson of the home's original builder, chosen as president-elect and historian. Other officers include Max Roy Hunt, secretary; Arthur Lyle Power II, treasurer; Scott K. Malan, S. Eugene Flake and Glen L. Flake, directors.

The Smith home, built by the youngest first cousin of Joseph Smith, Jr., today displays relics from family collections of each of five wives of Smith who resided in the home during the days of polygamy. His own personal books and library have also been preserved.

Smith was the first president of the Snowflake Stake and also served twice as president of the Scandinavian Mission; he spoke five languages.

Young Blood Runs Mt. Olympus SUP

The Mt. Olympus Chapter is a group of younger men ranging from ages 20 to 65 with the average age being 35. If any of the present SUP members have sons who are interested but have never joined, the Mt. Olympus Chapter may be for them. They meet every third Saturday at the new SUP Headquarters at p.m.

If what the chapter has planned for the first six months is any indication of what will be coming for the last six months, then they have a great year planned for 1983. The schedule for the new year will be: January, speakers who are experts on the Civil War, who will show slides and articles from that period. February, Dave Thomas will speak on the Role of the Pioneer Woman. March, Trek to the DUP Museum. April, the Institute Choir will perform. May, a Surprise June, Trek to the Ogden Gun Museum in Ogden Depot.

The new President is Peter Schiess and the rest of the officers were elected December 30th. Chapter dues of $15 are due the first of January. We have a limited number of patterns to make an official pioneer bonnet, which will be given to those members who pay their dues first.

Earl W. Bascom

Receives Canadian Rodeo Honors

The Board of Directors of the Canadian Rodeo Historical Association and the Cardston Agricultural Society recently honored former rodeo champion, and SUP life member Earl W. Bascom, for helping pioneer the international sport of rodeo.

Some 60 years ago, back in 1922 while Bascom was living in Canada, he thought up, designed and made rodeo's first hornless bronc riding saddle. The new saddle was first used at the Cardston, Alberta Stampede. This basic design is still being used today in the saddle bronc riding events at all professional rodeos throughout the United States, Canada and Australia.

At the recent Cardston Heritage Days celebration, Earl Bascom was made an honorary citizen of Cardston, Alberta, and was Parade Marshal of the First Annual Heritage Days Parade, and was awarded a special silver buckle and saddle at the indoor rodeo.

Earl Bascom lives in Victorville, California and is Patriarch of the Barstow, California Stake. He is listed in "Who's Who in the West'' and "Who's Who in American Art'' and spends his time creating bronze sculptures of his cowboy experiences.

Lake Park Pavilion 1885

Oil Painting by Le Conte Stewart

. . . FROM THE BICENTENNIAL HISTORICAL ART COLLECTION, WEBER STATE COLLEGE

During the 1880's this stately pavilion graced the east shore of the Great Salt Lake, but, after the bare feet of thousands of bathers literally stamped the sand of the beach into its underlying gray salt mud, the Lake Park Resort folded, its railroad spur was abandoned and its majestic pavilion was removed to the new Lagoon resort six miles directly east of the vacated Lake Park Resort in 1890.

The Weber State College Bicentennial Historical Art Collection is comprised of over 60 original paintings by 23 prominent Utah artists to preserve in visual art form a measure of Utah's history. The collection is on permanent display in the Stewart Library of Weber State College, Ogden, Utah.
